The SNCC was formerly known as the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and was founded in 1960 during the period of civil rights activity in the South. The organization advocates the use of force to achieve revolutionary goals and the destruction of the capitalistic system of government in the United States.

The January 13, 1971 edition of "Newsday", a daily newspaper published in Nassau County, NY, contained an article on page 4A concerning women's liberation groups in the Metropolitan NY area. One of the individuals interviewed was Frances Mary Beal, who is described as a radical member of TWWA. Miss Beal declared that TWWA women are fighting against their triple exploitation in society (ie) capitalism, race and sex. TWWA is nationalist, socialist and feminist. The group particularly opposes the position of Stokely Carmichael, a former leader of SNCC who expressed his philosophy concerning women in radical movements with the often-quoted phrase, "The position of women in the radical movement is prone".
